In 2002, 2006, 2010 and several years later, (google) is still in full operation over all network providers apps demanding access to phones accounts even after continuously being hacked and millions of people are still having their information and Identities stolen.

This places a heavy burden on business owners and employees who now cannot retrieve important or personal information from their gmail accounts because passwords were changed without their knowledge or consent. And theres basically nothing the account holder can do but start over.

But when you have up to (5) or more accounts constantly being hacked (passwords) that are linked to social media accounts, banking, utility companies etc. This can also harm credit scores and housing.

I have several clients im representing as a community, that request this be resolved as it has took a toll on their lives and left some homeless or not able to get transportation to work.
